

weekend TODAYincorporating Streetswe set you thinking • todayonline.comSWING SINGAPORE?

Partner swapping and kinky fantasies are all the rage in local swingers' clubs

Rahel Venkat

rahel@today.com.sg

THEY call it a "meeting of lifestyle friends". But don't be fooled by the sophisticated sugar coating. Behind the closed doors of the rising number of swingers' clubs in Singapore lies a buzzing tale of sexual promiscuity, explicit with partner swapping, group sex and kinky fantasies.

Swingers are by definition those who engage freely in promiscuous sex. Though swingers' clubs have always existed in Singaporean hill-tops, Trazz has learnt that the connectivity of the Internet has caused a mushrooming of such clubs, many of them online.

A single check on any search engine leads the curious to three such swingers' clubs, some which advertise their wares globally.

One club, called Singapore Swing-town, boasts of eight local branches, including ones in Queenstown, Woodlands, Choe Chu Kang, The Pariah and Bishkek.

Almost all require registration and password access, after which interested couples are contacted via email and online invitations.

According to sources, couples and single girls also receive unsolicited invitations to join swingers' parties, based on recommendations from current members.

Usually, couples are first queried by the club's founder members about their background and sexual preferences. Once their whereabouts are found to match those of the club's, they are given access to the email group or website upon payment of an annual membership fee of $50.

Continued on Page 2

WORLD MOURNS POPE
IN LARGEST FUNERAL
EVER 4

"He used to own his own business, but became a cabbie after he lost it all to the casino: He went from spending hours in front of the roulette wheel to working hours behind a steering wheel."

THE MACAU STORY
BOOMING
BUT SAD 8

Mediacorp
NEWS HOTLINE
68 2222 68
every call has a story

